Zeemote - makers of wireless controllers for mobile devices - and Nokia have announced a cooperation to bring the award-winning Zeemote JS1 Controller to thousands of users in Germany who want a totally new mobile gaming experience.

With a thumbstick and four assignable trigger buttons, the Zeemote JS1 Controller offers real analogue control over Bluetooth, enabling you to engage with mobile games which are Zeemote Ready as well as other enabled applications residing on the mobile.

The Zeemote JS1 Controller has been designed to complement Nokia's ambition in mobile gaming &ndash; to offer easy-to-use and high quality experiences wherever, whenever and with whomever you like.

The agreement sees Nokia advertising the Zeemote JS1 Controller in its German on and offline media channels. Additionally, the Zeemote JS1 Controller will be available in special Nokia gaming bundles with selected mobile devices.

&ldquo;With the world's gaming eyes on The Games Convention at Leipzig it was a natural and perfect venue for us to announce our cooperation with Nokia in Germany,&rdquo; said Jim Adams, VP of Worldwide Sales at Zeemote. &ldquo;This and other announcements we have planned have the potential to extend and unlock the creativity of game and application development to a new level.&rdquo;

&ldquo;The cooperation with Zeemote shows that Nokia is serious about casual gaming &ndash; we invest in hardware and software to bring consumers a whole new mobile gaming experience,&rdquo; said Sven Morawek, Business Manager Games, Services & Software, GTM, Nokia.
